Review: Josefstädter Street Festival, Citizen Cafe

The citizen cafe organized by the research platform Science Goes Public during the Josefstädter street festival was a great success with 100 to 130 visitors. The visitors demonstrated high levels of engagement and as such numerous ideas on mobility of the future were gathered in the courtyard of the Institute. The insights gained through these discussions will be incorporated into a scientific publication and serve as input for future projects in which, for example, the societal readiness for new mobility routes will be analysed.

Public Lecture: The Future of Transatlantic Relations

On October 3, in cooperation with the Austrian Institute for International Politics, a public lecture will be held with Alexandra de Hoop Scheffer, the Director of the German Marshall Fund in Paris. The lecture will explore the future of transatlantic relations beyond the current president's term. Online registration is requested.

Symposium: Social Progress in and through Education

The program for the Symposium "Social Progress in and through Education" on October 7 has been finalized. The Keynotes will be held by Stephanie Matseleng Allais from the University of Johannesburg, Aaron Benvot from the University of Albany, NY, and Justin Powell from the University of Luxembourg. The aim of the symposium is to promote a discussion on the potential of education for the promotion of social progress. There are still places available, please email potzmann@ihs.ac.at to register for the event.
